The Parramatta River

In this talk, Gregory Blaxell, the well-known author of The River and other books, took us on a journey along the Parramatta River, from Rhodes, through Homebush Bay, Meadowbank, Ermington, Dundas, to Newington.

The first land grants in this area were made in 1793, to five newly-arrived settlers who took up small holdings (24 to 48 ha) near Homebush Bay, in an area then known as Liberty Plains, because these five were free settlers. Then in 1810 D'Arcy Wentworth, one time highwayman and now Resident Medical Officer at Parramatta Hospital, acquired 379 ha on which he established a horse stud. He called this property 'Homebush' and began breeding fine horses and reclaiming the low-lying marshes around Homebush Bay.

In 1891 serious reclamation started with the construction of a sea-wall along the western side of Homebush Bay, which was back-filled to produce industrial land. Homebush Bay and Rhodes then became the home of Sydney's heavy and obnoxious industries. The western side of the bay became the dumping ground for Sydney's waste, abattoirs and brick yards until 1984, when construction of Sydney's Olympic Park commenced on that site. Homebush Bay was also used as a breaking yard for ships, and wrecks of five vessels remain as rusting, mangrove-covered, heritage-listed hulks.

Gregory Blaxell then took us across the river to the northern shore, to the Meadowbank Baths—known locally as 'Muddybank Baths' for obvious reasons—and to the remains of the ramp for the punt that linked the residential district of Ryde to the industries on the southern shore, before the first Ryde road bridge, with its lifting span, was opened in 1935 (later duplicated in 1986).

From there we journeyed westward to Ermington, where a wharf was constructed in 1832 for loading timber, fruit, and blue metal from Dundas and Pennant Hills. The railway bridge was built in 1886. Further up the hill is 'Brush Farm House' built by Gregory Blaxland in 1820 on land originally owned by William Cox and by D'Arcy Wentworth. Here Blaxland ran cattle, grew grapes and made prize-winning wine. Today Brush Farm House (owned by Ryde Council) remains as a mix of restoration, renovation and conservation.

Whilst Gregory Blaxland farmed on the northern side of the river, his brother John acquired land on the opposite shore, which he named 'Newington' after their home in Kent. John Blaxland established various ventures, including commercial salt pans and a bone and shell crushing mill to make lime. In 1829 he was elected to the Legislative Assembly and built a fine house and chapel, 'Newington House'. In 1863 Newington College occupied the house, in 1883 it became 'The Benevolent Asylum for Aged Women', and it is now the administrative centre of Newington State Prison.

At that point time decreed that we left the river and Gregory Blaxell's wonderful fund of history, with the suggestion that there is still much more of the river to be explored at a later date.

HISTORY IN THE 21st CENTURY

– from ancient cultures to contemporary life.

Dr Lisa Murray, the recently appointed City Historian, will talk about her role at the City of Sydney Council and the way she is bringing our history to life in the 21st century. Key projects that she will discuss include Barani/Barrabugu (Yesterday/Tomorrow)—Sydney's Aboriginal Journey, and the Dictionary of Sydney,

www.dictionaryofsydney.org

Afternoon Tea will be available.

Visitors welcome.

Next Family History Meeting

Saturday 1 October

11.00 am Q & A—Problem-sorting session.

2.00 pm General Meeting
"Freemasonry in Ku-ring-gai"
Speaker: Don Davis.

Afternoon Tea will be available.

Visitors welcome.

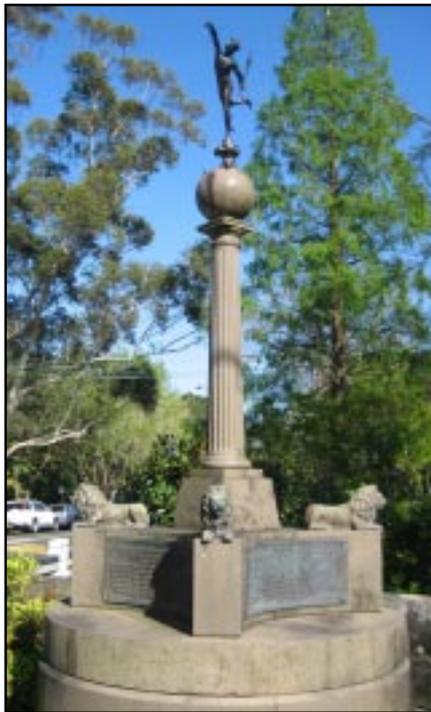

Irish Day with Terry Eakin

Saturday 8 October, 10.30 am–4.00 pm

It is 9 years since Terry visited our Group to impart his knowledge and expertise on Irish Research. Final bookings will be taken at the Family History meeting on 1 October. Cost $30–includes morning/afternoon teas, light lunch, handouts, lucky door prize. Enquiries: Jo Harris 9489 4393.

Wireless Monument at Wahroonga

The Wireless Monument at Wahroonga commemorates the first direct wireless message from the UK to Australia–Wales to Wahroonga, and is located outside “Lucania”, corner Stuart & Cleveland Streets Wahroonga. This was the home of Sir Ernest Fisk (head of AWA), where the 1918 message was received. “Lucania” was the name of the ship on which Fisk was the wireless operator for the Marconi Company when he first arrived in Australia.

Why get excited over a few dots and dashes when you are now able to turn on your television and watch 3D colour images from all over the world, or take your mobile phone out of your pocket and speak to someone on the opposite side of the world? In 1918 they could only receive the message.

On 22 September 2011, the 93rd Anniversary of receiving the message, a dedicated group of volunteers led by Jo Harris, our Vice President, met at the monument to celebrate the event and increase public awareness. They arrived at the monument a little early–before Mercury, the Messenger of the Gods. He arrived shortly afterwards and was placed on top of the monument–Mercury is only on the monument for one day of the year, as he has gone walkabout in the past.

The weather was magnificent and volunteers spent the day handing out pamphlets and chatting to all who passed by. The level of interest in the monument was good and we were impressed by the attitude of the school children we spoke to. This was good public relations for the Society, as we answered many general questions and encouraged people to visit our Society Research Centre.

“Wireless was a miracle which had opened up a new world far more spacious than that discovered by Columbus. Nothing would do so much to promote international peace as that modern miracle”, “Billy” Hughes, Prime Minister of Australia, stated at the unveiling of the Wahroonga monument in December 1935.

Apologies for the change in speaker!

Unfortunately, our advertised speaker for the October meeting has had to cancel. However, Dr Lisa Murray has agreed to fill the vacancy. Dr Lisa Murray has been a public historian for over 15 years. She currently chairs the Dictionary of Sydney Trust, and works as the City Historian at the City of Sydney Council. She is a member of the Professional Historians’ Association (NSW), and a Councillor of the History Council of NSW.

New Committee

The Society’s Annual General Meeting was held in August. The Committee remains unchanged except for Lorna Watt replacing Lorraine Swalwell. We would like to thank Lorraine for her contribution during the past year. We welcome Lorna, and look forward to her contribution.

Have you paid your subs?

We will be mailing out The Historian during October to all financial members. If you renew your subscription after the mailout, it will be necessary to collect your copy from the room, or add another $5 to your subscription. Mailing individual copies costs about three times the bulk price!

Special Interest Groups

German Research Interest Group

The meeting on Monday 12 September included a presentation of basic geography of Germany and major historical events. Thanks go to Peter Stehn for his preparation. We are compiling a couple of lists: 1. regions/cities of interest; and 2. surnames of interest. The next meeting is on Monday 10 October at 1.00 pm for 1.30 pm start. It will be in the meeting room. To help cover hire costs we request $2–this will include a cuppa.

Mac Users Group

Our next meeting will be on Thursday 13 October at 2.00 pm in the research rooms. We thought we’d try a different day to see if that suited some who hadn’t been able to come in the past.

Our meetings are informal and discussion is encouraged. If you have any specific questions, please email them in advance so they can be circulated to the group for answers (jackievb@optusnet.com.au). No need to book, just turn up. Bring your laptop or iPad if you like.

There has been interest in a Cornish Special Interest Group after the talk on August 31. We only have six names so far, and really need a few more people to get things going, so if you are interested in such a group, please contact us.

There has also been interest in forming a Scottish group, a Scandinavian group and a London group, but we need more people to get any of these going. Groups don’t have to be started by people who know a lot about a subject–sharing experiences is a really good way to learn. We can help you get started and will probably join in. Email jackievb@optusnet.com.au if you are interested–if there are enough people, then we’ll get something going.

ADIEU Ruth Frappell

Members who have been with us for some time will have fond memories of Dr Ruth Frappell, who died somewhat unexpectedly on 31 July.

Ruth joined the Society in 1995 and, after great service, left us to give attention to her many other commitments. In her ten years with the Society, she played a major role in helping produce our publications Focus on Ku-ring-gai and Women of Ku-ring-gai, both as an Editorial Committee member and contributing author. She served as a Vice President of the Society, and took an active interest in the well-being of Tulkian.

Her quiet presence was a deceptive curtain behind which her outstanding academic, spiritual and musical interests shone. Her qualifications alone give an indication of her abilities and enthusiasms. These included MA(Hons), PhD (Sydney), and LMusA. She was a contributor to the Australian Dictionary of Biography, had five entries in Oxford Dictionary of National Biography, was Associate Editor of the Journal of Religious History, President of the Anglican Historical Society (Sydney), an active member of the Sydney University Women's Group, co-author of The Struggle for Aboriginal Land Rights: A Documentary History and Honorary Research Associate in Modern History at Macquarie University,

Ruth was also a Councillor of the Royal Australian Historical Society for ten years, including four years as President.

Although we have not been able to enjoy Ruth's company over recent years, we recognise with gratitude the value of the work she did for us.

Our warm wishes are offered to her husband, Leighton, and her family.

University of NSW Regiment

A copy of 'The History of the University of NSW Regiment, 1952–2006' was recently presented by Colin Dunston (President, UNSW Regiment Association) to KHS President, Ann Barry.

This will be of particular interest to KHS members with family links to those who have served in the Regiment.

Volunteer parking for Research Centre

Council has mandated that the photocopied sheets we were using are not legal. They have issued us with 4 generic yellow laminated passes. These are to be displayed and returned to the room before you leave. Disabled ticket holders need only display their disability ticket.

Please write the number of the pass you use in the sign-in book next to your name.

Book review

Alan Frost's latest book, The First Fleet – The Real Story, is a very good read. The First Fleet has long been painted as having been poorly planned, ill-prepared, badly equipped, incompetently managed and ill-disciplined. Manning Clark, Robert Hughes, Jonathan King, David Mackay, John Molony, Mollie Gillen, Charles Wilson, AGL Shaw and David Hill have all used such terms, but it seems that few have actually looked for documentary evidence in support of such a conclusion. Indeed, it seems most of these writers have done little more than accept without question the claims of their predecessors, without doing anything to confirm them by independent research.

Frost's account comes to a very different conclusion. He appears to have accessed records apparently untouched by others, and has gone to extraordinary lengths to corroborate the emerging tale. He concludes that, far from being a "muddle", the preparation of the First Fleet was meticulously planned and well executed.

Part of the problem appears to be that in the 1780s the processes of government were still evolving. A clear divide between a civil service and their political masters was one such area. Another was the preservation of a clear paper trail. The writers of many important documents regarded those as personal property and they were often retained on loss of office, through retirement or otherwise. So a series of documents exchanged among various senior members of the government and their officials, as the proposal to establish a settlement in NSW was explored and refined, often ended up in the files of multiple departments, boards, etc., or even in private hands. Frost has managed to draw these threads together in a way others seem not to have attempted—certainly as no other has achieved in the more than 200 years since they were written!

The result is a fascinating story, and makes clear that the low death rate on the First Fleet was no happy coincidence, but the result of a well-coordinated and well-executed piece of planning. The book has received excellent reviews, including by The Sydney Morning Herald, The Weekend Australian and the Herald-Sun, and no wonder. It is written in a style that makes it easy to read. No dry tale, it is a book that you will want to finish. Well worth buying.

FAMILY MATTERS

16-18 September 2011 Annual State Conference hosted by Inverell District Family History Group Inc.

September Family History Meeting

11.00 am Session

29 members attended the morning session where Jo introduced the speaker, Peter Kettle, whose topic was the 'Ryerson Index', named after our KHS member, Joyce Ryerson. Peter explained that the index was begun by the Dead Person's Society of Sydney in 1998 to bridge the gap between the end of NSW Death Index, then 1975, and the present.

Six volunteers agreed to each index a day of the week of death notices in the Sydney Morning Herald and one other agreed to index the Daily Telegraph. Joyce Ryerson offered the use of 14 years of SMH death notices, stored in her laundry, to move the index back. Today the index covers newspapers in all states except Western Australia, and has more than 3 million entries listed.

All who have used it agree that it is invaluable, so, if you haven't yet done so, Google the Ryerson Index, and be amazed.

2.00 pm Session

Jo Harris opened the meeting by welcoming everyone, especially Peter and Pauline Kettle, guest speakers for the morning and afternoon sessions.

In 1853 the first steamer arrived in New Zealand from Sydney. In 1911, 100 years ago, Douglas Mawson left Hobart in the 'Aurora' for his Antarctic Expedition, and WE Hart became the first Australian to qualify as an air pilot.

Diary Date: Saturday 8 October, all day– Irish Research with Terry Eakin. Bookings essential.

Books, Visits, etc.

Jenny Joyce recommended the SAG Webinars after experiencing the first one. She also had a 'Yes' moment when she found her great-grandfather's retirement and death in the British Parliamentary Papers.

Jill Ball found details of her convict ancestors when visiting Kew.

Jo Harris researched Mrs Fulloon, first matron of the Female Factory, for someone she met at a 'Christmas in July' dinner.

Speaker

Jo Harris introduced the speaker, Pauline Kettle, whose title was 'The Workhouse—an institution dreaded by many'.

Pauline gave a comprehensive summary of the workhouse from 1494 to 1900, with particular reference to London and the Home Counties. She covered the various acts that were introduced to administer poor relief, the reasons why the workhouse was needed, what people did in the workhouse, the rules of conduct, clothing, food, the schooling of children, care of the sick and infirm, etc. Conditions improved in Victorian times due to the writings of men like Charles Dickens. She also provided a list of general resources and web references to guide further research.

The Raffle was won by Sue Dunston who chose 'An Irresistible Temptation—The true story of Jane New and a colonial scandal' by Carol Baxter.

Based on notes by Jean Smith

Jo Harris, Yvette Reeve, Julie Werner and I attended this well-organised Conference, catching up with delegates from other societies met at previous conferences, new-found distant relatives, or having fellow delegates seeking us in response to family names registered.

As the theme was "Pioneering the Country" Julie and I found Inverell District particularly interesting, as Julie was seeking forebears McIver, McKay and Cleal—the latter we found well represented at Warialda Information Office, the cemetery, and "Newstead Station", which was visited on Monday morning.

I delivered to the Inverell Society, scrap books compiled by Peter Fitzhardinge-Seton on the Ross Family, as Colin Ross, who arrived on the "Asia" in May 1839, is considered the founder of Inverell. We met 3 families in the district who are descendants.

On our route north we timed it well to visit the Walcha Historical Society, where the two men on duty happened to be working on some wartime photos of my Johnston relatives –I do have a nest of them there!

First thing on Friday morning we drove to Warialda, Bingara, and came back via Myall Creek Station (previously Big Plain, which Julie was seeking) south of Delungra. There is an interesting memorial to the Aborigines who were killed in The Myall Creek Massacre. I had often wondered exactly where it took place.

The eight topics given over the two days were interesting and varied. The trading tables separated many of us from our hard earned dollars! Carol Baxter gave a workshop on Friday and a very interesting insight to her newly published "Captain Thunderbolt and his Lady".

As I had previously visited "Newstead", I took the opportunity to visit Wing Hing Long Museum at the old tin mining village of Tingha (which only had electricity connected in 1950!). Who should I discover there, quite unexpectedly, but Mrs Symes, the sister in law of a fellow volunteer at SAG!

A night spent at Glen Innes for Julie to see the Standing Stones and photograph the Cameron Uniting Church where her great-grandparents and grandparents were married, see a friend's sheep being yarded at the saleyards, too early for the Beardies Museum unfortunately, but we had met Eve Chappell at the conference (a connection of Trevor Whitehead).

Beautiful spring gardens and weather (hotter than generally expected)—we covered over 1,500 km and enjoyed every minute—even if we only saw a water rat and not a platypus. I hope the others did too.

Angela Lind

P.S. We are all summoned to Botany Bay Family History Society Inc. at Gynea 14-16 Sept. 2012. (And I was charged with using a pen in the NSW State Records Office!)

An excerpt from the ancestry.com eNewsletter:

Using the Hamburg Emigration Lists on Ancestry.com (Juliana Smith 26 August 2011)

As immigration from Europe to America picked up steam in the mid- to late-nineteenth century, Hamburg was an attractive port of departure for many European emigrants, and fortunately for family historians, Hamburg departure records, 1850-1934 are available on Ancestry.com, along with handwritten indexes, which cover the years 1855-1934. Searching and Reading German?

While these lists, created in Hamburg, Germany, are in German, don't let that dissuade you. They are on printed forms and there are several translation tools out there that can help you with the headings. Search engine translators like Yahoo! Babelfish and Google Translate can be helpful. And the Ancestry.com German Research Center not only includes helpful German word lists, but also includes two sample manifests from the Hamburg lists, one from 1899 and one from 1907. Hover over the terms in the headers and you'll see a translation appear.

Here are some of the terms you'll find on the images.

- Zuname = surname
- Vornamen = given name
- Mannlich = male
- Weiblich = female
- Alter (in Jahren) = age (in years)
- Familienstand = family status
- Verheiratet = married
- Geschieden = divorced
- Ledig = single
- Verwitwet = widowed
- Beruf = occupation
- Stellung = position
- Staatsangehörigkeit = citizenship, nationality
- Bisheriger wohnort = previous residence
- Ziel der undwanderung = destination
- Ort und staat = place and state

For further reading go to Ancestry.com and click on the Learning Center tab – you can do this free, i.e. without a subscription; or you can visit our rooms.....

Recent acquisitions

Our Vice President, Jo Harris has recently made a very generous donation of 40 books on various cemeteries located in NSW. This is a very handsome addition to our already extensive collection and is well worth checking out. The following is selected from other acquisitions this month:

'The Roadmakers: A History of Main Roads in New South Wales' published by the Department of Main Roads 1976, ISBN: 0 7240 0439 4 and 335 pages. There is a wealth of information in this publication, e.g. the growth of vehicle registrations over the years (showing the impact of the 1930s Depression and World War II), the growth in the State of the road network and the progressive sealing of the road surface. In April 1923 Ku-ring-gai Shire Council borrowed £60,000 for the reconstruction of Lane Cove Road (now the Pacific Highway), a 6.75 mile section between Boundary Street Roseville and Pearce's Corner Wahroonga, using asphaltic concrete (which at that time was an entirely new form of construction; see page 70). This book was donated by Michael MacCabe.

BUILT HERITAGE

31 Greengate Road, Killara

I find things sometimes when I'm not looking! While searching for information on Leonard and Winifred Dodds, for whom Waterhouse & Lake designed Alnwick, 11 St Marks Rd Darling Point in 1915, I found that Winifred was living at 31 Greengate Rd Killara at her death in 1946.

The Dodds were a wealthy and influential couple. He was associated with the early development of mines at Broken Hill, Nymagee, Cobar, Girilambone and elsewhere. They were patrons of the arts and, while living in Neutral Bay, took an active interest in the artists' camp nearby at Little Sirius Cove. They acquired a collection of works by Roberts, Streeton, Long, Minns and Gruner. In the early 1890s Roberts painted Winifred's portrait, now held by the NGA.

The Dodds sold Alnwick in 1918 and moved to Widemere near Wentworthville. It was here in 1928 that Leonard died in a motor accident. By 1933 Winifred and their son Leonard Arthur Dodds were living at 4 Birdwood Ave Killara. In 1936 they moved to 31 Greengate Rd Killara.

This house is listed on the NSW Heritage website for its architectural and municipal significance, with the architects thought to be Wilson Neave & Berry.

Records show otherwise. In March 1936 RE Grout was the applicant to council for a residence in Greengate Rd for the Dodds; Leonard had bought the property in August 1935. The approved documents were collected by Reg E Grout, that is, Reginald Edwin Grout, partner of Roy Dyson Rudder in the architectural practice of Rudder & Grout.

At the time he was the Dodds' neighbour, living opposite 4 Birdwood Ave at No 7, a house designed for his parents Albert and Emily in 1928. No 9 Birdwood was also a Rudder & Grout project, for George Blackmore in 1934.

This probably explains why Dodds chose Rudder & Grout to design 31 Greengate Rd. They would have seen Blackmore's house being built and admired the firm's work. Why didn't they choose Waterhouse & Lake, architects for Alnwick, even today an impressive and much admired house? The practice was extant. Lake, however, had died in 1924. Perhaps the Dodds' connection to the firm was through him.

Ku-ring-gai residential projects by Rudder & Grout are believed to include 21 Lynwood Ave and 18 Kylie Ave in Killara, 6 Wellesley Rd Pymble (for Winifred's daughter Winifred Wolff), 34 Middle Harbour Rd Lindfield, 19 Nelson St Gordon, and 14 Duntroon Ave and 25 Warrane Rd in Roseville.

They designed hotels throughout Sydney, Newcastle and the south coast, and Olympic pools at North Sydney, Bankstown, Enfield, Granville and Leichhardt. Eight of their buildings are listed on the RIAA NSW Register of 20thC Buildings of Significance. The later practice of Rudder Littlemore & Rudder designed the award-winning Qantas House in 1955-1957.
